Letter from the 2021 Board President

Kristen Burt (she/hers) Board President

Dear Hangar community,

My name is Kristen Burt and I am the president of the board of trustees at the Hangar Theatre. As I enter my last year as President, I would like to take some time to recognize all that we accomplished in 2021 and celebrate all those who made the 2021 season possible. It takes a village and I'm incredibly proud of our staff, current board and emeritus members, our supporters, artists, patrons, and volunteers for pulling off an ambitious 2021 season in the outdoor performance space, which was built from scratch, during a pandemic.

I would also like to recognize outgoing board members whose 3-year terms have come to an end. Dale Flinn and Bill Highland have shared an incredible amount of knowledge, experience, enthusiasm and good humor with us during their tenures, I thank them both for their service to this organization.

Dr. Jessica Casey has served three consecutive terms on the board for a total of nine years. She is a past board president, a tremendous leader through turbulent times, a great support for me, and the most passionate theatre-lover you'll ever meet. Nobody would have chosen to steer a theatre through a pandemic, but the Hangar staff and board recognize how blessed we have been to be doing so with the wise and steady guidance of a medical professional like Jessica. I am eternally grateful for Jessica's long service to the Hangar and honored to announce that she will remain a vital part of our Hangar family as the newest emeritus board member. Thank you, Jessica.

Despite numerous obstacles the Hangar produced a 5-show Mainstage series, 4 KIDDSTUFF Theatre for Young Audiences productions, and a 4-show Wedge series for a total of 90 performances for over 9000 patrons in 15 weeks. We provided 13 online Project 4 classroom residencies and 16 Next Generation School of Theatre summer sessions, reaching approximately 450 school age youth in a pandemic year. We have so much to be proud of. It has truly been a pleasure to serve as the President of the Hangar board of trustees and I look forward to what's to come in 2022.

Letter from the Artistic Director

Shirley Serotsky (she/her) Artistic Director

Dear Hangar Friends and Family:

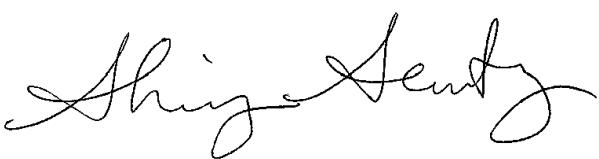

Oh, what a year it's been! Last year at this time the Hangar staff and board faced a slew of unknowns with optimism and grit as we prepared to produce live theatre during a pandemic, outdoors, for the first time in Hangar history. This year we move forward once again, with a few more certainties in place. We've benefitted from a widely-successful vaccine effort; support from a community that values artistic experiences; and the belief that theatre, now more than ever, is needed to help us heal. And of course, still plenty of optimism and grit.

Much of this Annual Report reflects on the accomplishments and victories of the past year. I'm glad we do this – it adds to the historical record of the Hangar and reminds us of the goals we attained that once, not so long ago, seemed impossible, the challenges that seemed insurmountable. But I also want to look forward.

While programming the 2022 season, I thought a lot about "the moment before the moment when everything changes". This idea plays out in the stories you'll see on stage this summer in significant historical ways (the moment before Hitler and the Nazis rose to power; the moment before Napolean and the French army invaded Russia; the moment before student protesters gathered in Tiananmen Square) and in personal ways (the moment before a group of teenage girls graduate from high school and move to their next stage of life). Now as I write this, I can't help but wonder, what if we were in "a moment before the moment when everything changes" when we chose the season? Watching events play out on the global stage, as Russia invades Ukraine and world leaders gather to discuss military coordination and humanitarian and economic assistance, it feels like a very different reality than even a month ago. Since I joined the leadership team at the Hangar in 2019, I've heard from committed Hangar patrons and artistic colleagues that Ithaca audiences long for hope at the end of a story. Can we be hopeful now, nearing year three of a global pandemic, at this time of international conflict?

And yet we must be. We must witness the joy and possibility present in every one of the stories we'll share this summer, even in those most precarious moments in history, and allow ourselves to participate in that joy and possibility as well.

Let's look forward. Let's motivate change for good, together. We can't wait to see you inside (and outside!) the Hangar this summer.

Letter from the Managing Director

R.J. Lavine (she/they) Managing Director

Dear Hangar Family of Supporters,

After a year and a half of isolation and uncertainty, civil uprising and online socializing, the Hangar Theatre proudly opened its 2021 season with The Realness: another break beat play. It was an exhilarating moment and one I will not soon forget. Four more Mainstage and four KIDDSTUFF Theatre for Young Audiences productions were to follow throughout the summer in the newly constructed outdoor performance space on the theater grounds, as were several final presentations originating from the Next Generation School of Theatre, Hangar's summer break program for youth.

Reclaiming space and resources for live, in-person theatre would not have been possible without your support and dedication to the artform. Together, we weathered many storms (literally!) to bring beautiful stories to life and reconnect our community through live performance. Despite the many challenges we faced individually and collectively last year, you continued to play a vital role in enhancing the cultural life of our community through your support of the Hangar. Thank you so much.

I'd also like to thank the 2021 Hangar staff, board, and emeriti for giving their all to fulfill our mission. You brought joy, hope, and inspiration to all who attended the Hangar last year and your work continues to be relevant and necessary today.

We've begun to rebuild capacity in a number of key areas following the initial shock of the pandemic - human resources, finance, and facilities to name three. I acknowledge that there is always much we can do to improve our service to our community of artists and audiences. We will never stop working diligently toward this very important goal.

With gratitude,

2021 evening performance of Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street in Hangar's Tompkins Trust Company outdoor Stage.

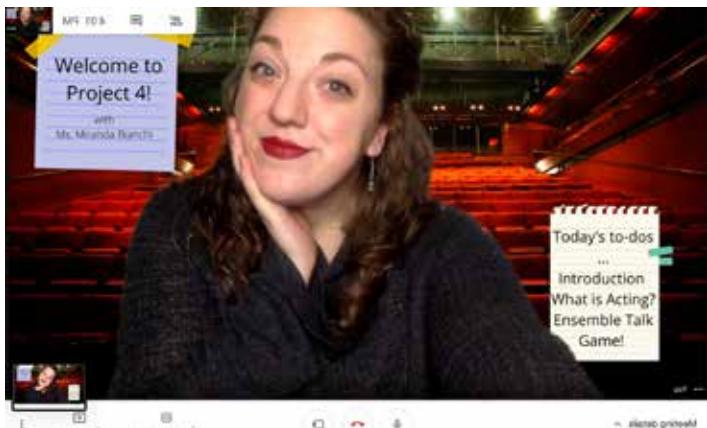

In Fall of 2020, under the leadership of then Interim Artistic Director Shirley Serotsky, the Hangar announced it would produce its 2021 season outdoors for the first time in its history. "I knew this was the only way we could confidently produce a full slate of programming without knowing what course the pandemic would take," Serotsky reflected. It proved to be a very insightful decision. Public health regulations and agreements with performer unions would have made indoor season all but impossible to pull off.

Planning began in earnest starting in February 2021 once Serotsky had been officially hired as the next Artistic Director and was joined by incoming Managing Director R.J. Lavine. In a series of meetings with Production Manager Adam Zonder and scenic and lighting designer Steve TenEyck, the new leadership team conceptualized the outdoor space, making choices step by step - about its orientation to the sun, size of the stage, number of seats - each leading to a new constellation of outcomes. The staff started from scratch, building seating charts in the ticketing system, devising ways to communicate with patrons, and writing grants to fund this massive project.

With two weeks to go until actors were to arrive, the grounds were not resurfaced for seating and the stage had yet to be built. The Hangar's technical team and contractors worked tirelessly to finish construction and set up the stage rigging before the first show went into tech rehearsals in mid June. And on opening night of The Realness: another break beat play, the Hangar staff and board were joined by members of the Tompkins Chamber, Tompkins Trust Company, and Mayor Svante Myrick for a ribbon cutting to launch this incredible performance space, which was to delight thousands of community members and visitors throughout the summer.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING PROGRAMS

EDUCATION

Teaching Artist Miranda Bianchi launches a virtual Project 4 classroom.

A Next Generation final showing on the Hangar's outdoor stage.

PROJECT 4

Between January-May 2021, the Hangar engaged with four different elementary schools in Tompkins County, Caroline, Belle Sherman, Fall Creek and Northeast, to complete virtual Project 4 Artist Residencies in a total of 13 classrooms. Teaching Artists utilized Google Meets to join students and teachers remotely, leading theatre exercises, voice and movement warm-ups, and eventually overseeing the devising and performance of a completely original play based on a 4th grade curriculum subject.

NEXT GENERATION SCHOOL OF THEATRE

From June-August 2021, we hosted our Next Gen programming in-person at the theatre. Students explored music, improv, play creation, and collaboration. At the end of each week, families came to the theatre for a final sharing.

2021 EVENTS

Hangar Special Event Highlights

Spring Heart & Soul Event

Friends of Hangar attended a virtual spring Heart & Soul event to meet members of the 2021 season artistic team in a guided conversation with Artistic Director Shirley Serotsky, Kyle Haden, director of The Realness: another break beat play, Sanaz Ghajar, director of Sweeney Todd, and Craig McDonald, who starred in Once shared their insights into the creative process and their aspirations for the season. Attendees also got a virtual tour of the newly erected outdoor performances space.

Fall Gala: Night of the Living Musicals

In October 2021, Hangar's annual fall gala was held in-person for the first time since 2019. The event took place under a heated outdoor tent on the Hangar grounds. The gala was titled "Night of the Living Musicals" and guests were invited to dress up as their favorite musical or character from a musical in the spirit of Halloween and a collective love of theatre. The evening included fabulous food and drink from our local dining partners, performances from Julie Benko, three prize raffles, testimony from education staff and program alumni, and announcements for the 2022 season from Hangar leadership. In total, over $10,000 was raised and will go towards education programming.

ANTI-RACIST/ANTI-OPPRESSIVE PRACTICES: COMMITMENT AND PROGRESS

In fall 2020, the Hangar shared the following commitments with the Ithaca and broader theatre communities. We include these commitments, as drafted, below; following that is an updated progress report from fall 2021.

The Hangar Theatre Company believes we must examine our participation in upholding the structure of white supremacy, which throughout history has centered and prioritized the lives and stories of white and white passing individuals. We acknowledge the pain our complicity may have caused, and are dedicating time and thought to learning about the history and pervasiveness of systemic racism and the racist and exclusionary practices in our industry.

We have created an Equity, Diversity, Inclusion and Accessibility Committee comprised of staff, board and affiliate artists, with a majority BIPOC membership, to work towards creating a long-term plan of actionable items dedicated to how the Hangar can dismantle notions and practices of white supremacy culture within our organization.

We will:

- Develop and produce more BIPOC writers, with the goal of at least 50% representation, across Hangar stages, by 2023. These projects will not be relegated to narratives that perpetuate victimization, but rather stories that dramatize a rich, full, life experience.
- Establish and compensate a group of invested BIPOC artistic advisors to help expand and diversify the conversations and decision-making process surrounding artistic programming.
- Increase representation from BIPOC theatre-makers to 50% on all creative teams (combined cast, design, and creative) for all Hangar productions; and will continue pursuing diversity in representation on all production teams.
- Continue to hold weekly mandatory staff meetings dedicated to identifying and dismantling white supremacy culture in the workplace, classroom, rehearsal room, and performance spaces; this will include anti-racism/anti-oppression training for all full-time employees.
- Hire more BIPOC educators and teaching artists in all Hangar Education programming streams (NextGen, Lab Company, and Hangar School Residencies) with a goal of 50% BIPOC representation by 2023.
- Dedicate a yearly paid fellowship in the area of theatre management/administration to an early-career BIPOC theatre administrator.
- Designate two fully-funded tracks each summer in our pre-professional training program, the Hangar Lab Company, for emerging BIPOC artists; we will strive to create a truly diverse ensemble so that BIPOC artists don't feel tokenized, and are able to spend their time learning and creating.
- Dedicate weekly rehearsal time for company members to share their thoughts about how they feel the process is going, especially as it relates to dismantling the systems of white supremacy. We will also institute a system for artists to share thoughts and concerns anonymously.
- Make our space available, at cost (yielding no profit to the Hangar) to individuals and non-profit organizations to produce events in support of anti-racism.
- Use our social media presence to promote Ithaca-area BIPOC owned-and-operated businesses and organizations.

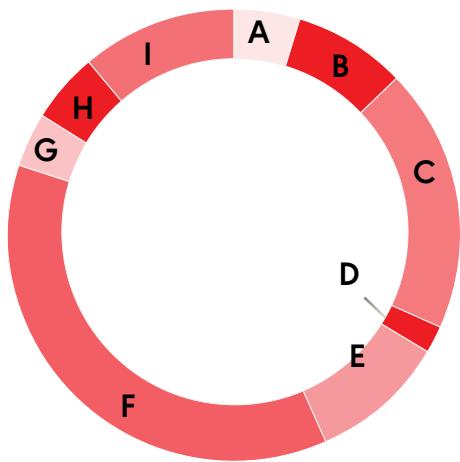

Following our commitment to advance equitable practices at the Hangar, we increased representation of the Global Majority on the board from 9% in 2020 to 26% in 2021. Conversations on policy and culture are robust and multi-faceted as a result. BIPOC-centered stories on all stages appealed to diverse audiences this season, and marked a significant expansion from previous generations of Hangar programming. In 2018 there were no BIPOC voices in the Hangar Mainstage and KIDDSTUFF series, in 2019 that increased to 11%, and in 2021 to 31%. Four of the nine stories in the 2021 summer season centered BIPOC experiences; the percentage trends down due to the number of writers involved in musical theatre projects, which still tend to come from white, male writers. This realization has led the Hangar to embark on new musical theatre development work in 2022, with the intention of helping to further diversify the musical theatre canon.

Additionally, 2021 productions employed a diverse company of performers and tech staff with a wide range of identities. 36 company members self-identified as LGBTQIA+ and two as neurodiverse. 45.6% of Mainstage actors, designers, and directors were BIPOC—with individual cast and creative teams ranging from 36% to 87% BIPOC representation. The Lab Company and Drama League Directors (39% BIPOC) produced four new and re-imagined KIDDSTUFF shows that explored a broad range of human existence through various theatrical forms. Production staff (34.4% BIPOC) and summer admin (20% BIPOC) met regularly to advance institutional inclusion and equity efforts through informal conversation and action steps. Improving internal communication and environmental conditions related to the outdoor space were key to creating an equitable workplace.

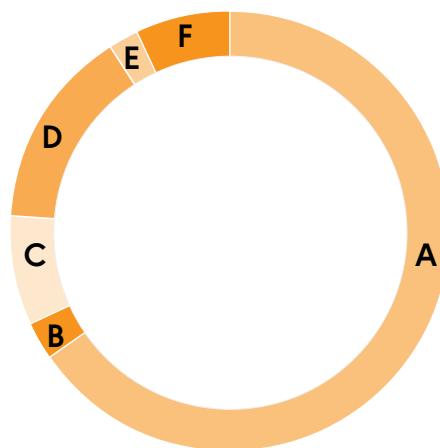

Hangar full-time staff gathered for weekly staff meetings dedicated to identifying and dismantling white supremacy culture in the workplace, classroom, rehearsal room, and performance spaces from June 2020-April 2021. For four weeks in August 2020, full-time staff and summer interns participated in professionally-led anti-racist training sessions with Dr. Nia Nunn, an associate professor in the Department of Education at Ithaca College and Board president of Ithaca's Southside Community Center (a community resource center that continues to affirm, empower, and foster the development of self-pride among the African-American citizens of greater Ithaca through forums and activities.) As we prepare the next iteration of staff conversations starting in 2022, we hope to incorporate Zoom QA sessions with known leaders and educators advocating for EDIA in the arts.

Hangar Theatre joyfully ended its second consecutive budget year in the black in 2021. Our expenses demonstrate the Hangar's aim to prioritize compensating employees fairly while producing high quality programming - a trend on which we intend to expand in 2022. Earned revenue from ticket sales and subscription income were down approximately 65% compared to 2019. Thanks to an influx of federal relief and the generous support of individuals and community businesses, the Hangar built an entirely new outdoor performance space and continued its service to the community through transformational theatre programs. We do not anticipate the same level of federal support in 2022 and will focus on expanding our local and regional audiences to increase earned revenue, while engaging private foundations, individuals, and corporations to shore up contributed income for another season in the black. Lines of credit that were maxed out in 2020 were paid down 100% in 2021.

Hangar Theatre Company Land Acknowledgement

The Hangar Theatre is located on the traditional homelands of the Gayogohó:ño' (the Cayuga Nation). The Gayogohó:ño' are members of the Haudenosaunee Confederacy, an alliance of six sovereign Nations with a historic and contemporary presence on this land. The Confederacy precedes the establishment of the Hangar Theatre, New York state, and the United States of America. With this statement, the Hangar Theatre acknowledges the painful history of Gayogohó:ño' dispossession, and honors the ongoing connection of Gayogohó:ño' people, past and present, to these lands and waters.
